The swiftest most destructive and most formidable naval vessel in the world, the much-talked of Pirate, or Cruiser No. 12, will be launched at Cramps Shipyard, Philadelphia, next Tuesday afternoon. When the contract was awarded to the Cramps October 4th, 1890, there being almost endless speculation among those interested in the United States Navy, it was stipulated in the contract that the entire vessel in all of its parts should be of domestic manufacture. Since the vessel has approached completion little doubt of her efficiency has been entertained by the naval experts who have inspected her. When completed she will be indeed "the 7,300 ton three-screw commerce destroyer" spoken of in the Naval Appropriation bill.

THERE was a queer fire at the Cotton Mills yesterday afternoon. It was discovered first in the picker-room, and seems to have originated from a piece of burning cotton that ignited on the roof and in falling was drawn into the window. At least that is the theory of its origin. For a few moments the picker room was a mass of flames, but the mill hands subdued them without calling on the city department. The loss is covered by insurance.

CLERK FATUTE was thrown down stairs at the Galt House, Cincinnati, night before last, by an irate gentleman from Georgetown, Ky., because he insisted upon ascertaining whether the lady who occupied the room with him was his wife. Reflection at the bottom of the stairs probably brought the sober second thought that she was. This Fatute is the same inquisitorial stinker who caused a young woman to suicide at the same hotel a few weeks ago. His nosing propensities seem to be in the nature of insolence.

The performance consists of singing, dancing and all the features incidental to a good variety show with no vulgarity. Jailer Brown was forced to flee with Carter for safety, as an attempt was made to kill him, and a mob was gathering while preparations were being made for their departure.

GOVERNOR BROWN has vetoed the bill permitting managers of turnpike roads to allow Ministers, school children and funeral processions to pass through gates free of toll. The veto was sustained by a vote of sixty to one. The principles involved in the seemingly insignificant bill are far reaching in their effect, and apply to charters, contracts and vested rights of every description, as embodied in the greatest material interests in the state—and these have been the frequent cause of expensive litigation for the last quarter of a century.

A M.T. STERLING female played it slick on a collector on the N. N. and M. V. the other day, says The Morehead Sun. Her pocket-book slipped out the window in the presence of the autocrat of the punch. Of course the purse contained her ticket and all the wealth she possessed, and her tearful distress evoked sympathy from the occupants of the car. She was permitted to ride free, and telegrams were sent to the nearest station, ordering a search for the lost purse. It was found, and contained two hairpins, a postage stamp and a fine tooth comb.

A STRIKE of the telegraphers on the twenty-three divisions of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad system is probable. There are seven hundred in all. The men have asked for more wages, which the railroad so far has refused to grant. Grand Chief Ramsey, of the telegraphers, is in Louisville and has had two unsatisfactory conferences with General Manager Metcalfe. Mr. Metcalfe says the road cannot pay any higher salaries than now exist. The order now numbers twenty-one thousand, all of whom are pledged to support a strike if made.

MRS. J. HOOKER HAMERSLEY of New York gave birth to a child at Newport, R. I. Simple though this announcement is, it is fraught with the greatest importance to the parents of the child, to the Duchess of Marlborough and to the many charitable institutions to which she may be kindly disposed. For if this child be alive when the Duchess dies, she will inherit $7,000,000 left by Louis C. Hamersley, whose widow the Duchess was before she was allied to the nobility. She is now enjoying the income of this fortune. Should the child's father, who is a cousin of the testator, have no son living at the time of the Duchess' death, the money will go to whatever charitable institutions she may designate in her will.

THE celebrated case of W. M. Dries, the Newport merchant, against Edward Bradford and his wife, was ended in a Covington Squire's court in a way quite unexpected. The suit was for $105 for dress, jewelry and finery furnished Mrs. Bradford, and which her husband did not know about and refused to pay, claiming they were mostly luxuries and not necessary.

Mr. Bradford claimed further that Dries was in collusion to deceive him and purposely carried the bills for seven years, the better to accomplish that object. There was much argument by the lawyers, and the jury seemed bent on finding just how much of the stuff was luxuries and how much necessities, intending to allow for the latter only. When Dries saw this he offered to compromise with Bradford and to knock off $40 from the bill and pay half the costs of court. Bradford thought this rather reasonable and he cashed down $65 and the Court business was stopped. Dries realized only fifty per cent. on his speculation with Mrs. Bradford.

OUTLAWS.

A Band of Ruffians Who Commit All Kinds of Crime.

They Attempt to Release One of Their Number From Jail.

The Jailer Secures a Possession—The Marauders Retreat Behind Shelter and Open Fire—The Fire Returned and the Fusillade Continues for Half an Hour.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 22.—There was high excitement in Smith county Thursday. The cause was the appearance Wednesday night of the mysterious masked band of ruffians who at intervals for the past several months have been issuing forth under cover of midnight darkness to inflict punishment on persons selected as victims, and also to rob and plunder.

In one case they took a white woman from her home and well night beat her to death. In another instance they dragged a young colored girl, a school teacher, from her bed and tried to outrage her, and when the girl resisted, vowed she would be killed rather than submit, her assailants beat her naked back with great switches until she was almost unconscious. Several other unoffending people, some white and some colored, were dragged by the unknown ruffians from their homes and put through all manner of tortures, at the same time being robbed of watches and money.

This state of affairs didn't exist very long before the best people in the county rose in indignation and began to try to ferret out the guilty parties. On the night of Saturday, the 9th, the ruffians started out on a raid. There were thirteen of them, all on horseback. About 2 o
